Dr. Mark Seeley to Discuss Climate Change at Century College on Nov. 19

Dr. Mark Seeley of the University of Minnesota will discuss Minnesota's changing climate patterns and their implications at Century College on Wednesday, Nov. 19, from 11 a.m. to noon in the West Campus Theatre. The event is free and open to the public.

A frequent guest on Minnesota Public Radio, Seeley is a professor, extension meteorologist and climatologist in the Department of Social, Water and Climate. He is the author of Minnesota Weather Almanac, which was nominated for a 2006 Minnesota Book Award.

Seeley spends 20 percent of his time conducting research and 80 percent of his time focusing on extension programs related to the utilization of weather data for agricultural production systems and natural resources management.
